CENSUS MAN FINDS TWO PICKPOCKETS

more than any other which the latest State census is disclosing while the field sheets are being checked up it is the fact that hundreds of thousands of foreigners once landed in the United States lose little time before embarking In business for themselves.

One instance has been unearthed by an enumerator where an Italian was a bootblack with his own stand set up and ready for business four days are he had left the ship. All told Quinn drove about 200 miles in covering the town, getting $2 a day and two cents a name for his work. One day he managed to obtain only His highest day netted him ninety-five names. Tough picking it was for Quinn when he was forced to seek out some settler upon a little forest clearing and then find that the family was on a fish-ing trip or further back in the woods. Whether or not Quinn will be an appli-cant for a census job when the time for the next enumeration rolls around

Indians Easy to List.

Enumerators on the Indian reservations about the State say in letters to the bureau that they have had an easy task in counting the few thousand red-skins. In getting more detailed information in regard to the Indians the Secretary's office combined with the State Department of Education. Special field sheets were used which called for answers as to the tribe, the clan, edu-cation, number of acres under cultivan, whether Christian or pagan, degree of Indian blood and ability to speak of Indian blood and ability to speak English.

At the Onondaga reservation there has been a gain of 22 during the last five years, the total population on the tract now being 546. Out of the 7,300 acres on the reservation 4,266 acres are being tilled this summer, about 8 acres to every man, woman and child. On the St. Regis reservation in Franklin county are now 1,086 Indians, as compared with 1,249 in 1910. A total of 10,638 acres out of the 14,030 comprising the reservation is being cultivated this year. Moreover, not a single person on the St. Regis tract confessed to the enumerator to being a pagan, while on the Onondaga reservation more than one hundred said they were still worshipping their old time gods.

With a few exceptions the women of "uncertain age" gave the enumerators no trouble. After passing a certain birthday which varies with the individual, no unmarried woman takes great pleasure unmarried woman takes great pleasure in referring to her age. In one of the northern New York cities the enumerator called at a woman's house. After ask-ing question after question and jotting down the answers he came to the one dealing with the age.

"How old are you♥ asked the census

Finally Tells Her Age.

"About 20," replied the woman, although it was evident from her appear-ance that the 30 mark had already-been passed. The census man repeated the question and received the same answer, given with some show of indignation. He persisted that he wanted the correct age. He informed the woman that it was within his power to call an officer of the peace. The woman told him to do so. He did. The presence of a detective captain was necessary before peace was restored and the age was given. Just what it turned out to be is one of the secrets being housed behind the walls of the State Census Bureau.

Within a few weeks some interesting figures will be furnished by the bureau, figures that will show the number of aliens in the State by city, county and village, the various occupations and a hundred and one other things which will become known to a certainty through the result of the recent enumeration.

If the State reaches the 10,250,000 which Secretary Francis M. Hugo has predicted, the gain for the last five years will amount to 1,126,386, or an increase of 5,867,241 in the last forty-five years.

Pickpockets Not Modest.

At any rate the pickpockets gave their names, ages and profession, hazardous as it is. No mention of it was made until a day or two ago, when one of the employees at the bureau went to the State supervisor of the big count and wanted to know if "pickpocketing" is a profession of an occupation. The supervisor was baffied for the time being, but finally decided that it should be classified as an occupation.

On the back of one of the pay vouchers which have been turned into the census office within the last few days was written the following: "Walked the profession of the country.
